Soviet Spacemen Ready To Link Up To Space Station

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soyuz 10 spacecraft, carrying three Soviet cosmonauts, moved into position today to link up with the unmanned scientific station Salute and form the world's first orbiting space platform.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced that the two craft were making final preparations to rendezvous and dock in earth orbit.

Tass said that as of noon Moscow time—4 a.m. EST—Soyuz 10 had made 22 orbits of the Earth and Salute 86 orbits.

"During the joint flight," Tass said, "scientific and technical experiments were conducted and the work was done for linking and undocking of the manned spaceship and the orbit station Salute."

Tass added that rendezvous and docking equipment on the spaceships were checked, and the "radio technical equipment were perfected."

The brief dispatch also said that the three cosmonauts aboard Soyuz 10 "feel fine" and that all the systems aboard their craft and the unmanned dummy ship Salute "function normally."

Soviet cosmonauts have docked two Soyuz craft in a previous space mission, but the Salute craft, launched last Monday, is a new item in the Soviet's catalogue of space hardware.

Soyuz 10 streaked into orbit early Friday morning and began pursuing Salute around the Earth. The crew made two slight adjustments in the craft's orbit on Friday and zeroed in for the rendezvous.

At last report, Soyuz and Salute were in parallel orbits, but the manned craft was slightly higher and would have to throttle down a bit to drop into the lower orbit.

This maneuver apparently was carried out today.

The linking of the two craft would be a major step toward the declared Soviet goal of building the world's first orbiting space laboratory.

The progress report from Tass said the crew will rest from 1:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Moscow time. This would put the time of docking sometime this evening after the cosmonauts wake up.

During the rest period, Tass said, Soyuz 10 "will be away from the range of radio-visibility from the territory of the Soviet Union."

The Soviets lack the world-wide tracking facilities that the United States can rely on for its space missions. Thus much of the time during an orbital flight, the cosmonauts are out of radio contact with their ground controllers.

Informed Soviet sources hinted Friday that after linking of Soyuz 10 and Salute, more Soviet cosmonauts might be launched aboard Soyuz 11.

The Soyuz ships, the sources said, would connect to either end of the Salute craft to form a sort of orbiting "shish-kebab."

Senate Panel OKs Campaign Spending Curb

Advertising, Disclosure, Clauses Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a campaign spending bill covering some of the objections President Nixon voiced in vetoing a similar measure last year.

The new bill would set enforceable spending limits on political advertising, require more detailed disclosure of contributions and expenditures and open the way for televised debates between presidential candidates.

To encourage more small contributions, the bill would allow a $100-a-person tax deduction for political gifts and set a $5,000 limit on contributions by any individual to a candidate. Donations of that size now can be made to several committees on behalf of a candidate.

Presidential, Senate and House candidates would be limited to advertising expenditures of 5 cents per potential voter for radio and television time, and an identical amount for newspaper space, periodicals and billboards.

Nixon, who has endorsed the principle of spending limitations but no specific measure, objected that the 1970 bill unfairly restricted spending on radio and TV but not other media. The spending limit in that bill was 7 cents for each vote cast in the most recent election.

In an attempt to give candidates their money's worth, the committee would require a "lowest unit rate" charge for all advertising.

A candidate for Congress would be assured of no less than a $60,000 spending limit, regardless of the number of voting-age citizens in his district.

The spending limit would not apply to other outlays such as direct mailings, travel and hotel expenses and campaign workers' pay.

$1 Million Blaze Hits Lima Firm

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Strong winds and a lack of water caused damage estimates to soar to the $1 million mark in a fire that destroyed three warehouses at Lawndale Industries, Inc. this morning.

Firemen responded to the blaze at 3:46 a.m. with every piece of equipment available, but were hampered by gusting winds that whipped the fire and spread sparks to adjoining buildings.

The firefighters were hampered initially by a lack of water, resulting from no nearby fire hydrants. Hoses had to be stretched nearly the length of a football field to pour water on the flames.

Damaged by the fire were three warehouses and their contents. Several adjoining company buildings suffered heavy damage.

Officials estimated the damage to buildings and contents would approach and possibly surpass the $1 million mark.

Twelve firemen narrowly escaped injury when they had to flee one of the warehouses, leaving 40 feet of hose and other equipment in the burning building.

The 60 firemen, nearly three-fourths of the entire department, were unable to bring the fire under control in five hours. Lawndale, which manufactures bathtubs for mobile homes, is a subsidiary of Kodak Industries, Inc., of Minneapolis, Minn.

Mitchell Hits 'Tapanoia' By Solons

CINCINNATI (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell Friday night asserted that congressmen who complained that their telephones were tapped by the FBI were suffering "from a new type of paranoia-tapanoia...."

He also said that the nation's security is imperiled more from within than from without.

Mitchell made the statements at a dinner meeting of the Kentucky Bar Association here.

He said he wanted to "set the record straight" on charges against the FBI and its director, J. Edgar Hoover, House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, presidential frontrunner.

But while contending the congressmen and senators are not tapped or spied upon by the FBI, Mitchell said the Nixon administration felt it had a duty to eavesdrop on those who might endanger national security.

Mitchell refused to draw a distinction between threats to the nation from foreign spies and from home grown radicals, Mitchell said.

"I don't see how we can separate the two, but if it were possible, I would say that experience has shown greater danger from the so-called domestic variety."

Without naming Boggs and Muskie, Mitchell gave detailed rebuttals of their charges against the FBI. He said both owe an apology and a retraction to the FBI and Hoover.

Mitchell, referring to Boggs' charges, said that not "one iota of proof of the reckless charges" had been made that the telephone had been tapped by the FBI.

Mitchell said the statement on the House floor Thursday reminded him of "the type of hypochondria who insists that he is sick, regardless of the doctors' assurances.

"The congressman has been afflicted by a new type of paranoia-called tapanoia—the belief that your telephone is being tapped," Mitchell said.

"I repeat what I said at the time: The FBI has not tapped the telephones of any member of the House or Senate—now or in the past," Mitchell said.

He said Muskie's claim of "general political surveillance" of senators and his statement about FBI agents attending

Earth Day rallies last year was false. The attorney general said Muskie "twisted the facts to make political headlines."

Mitchell reiterated an earlier statement that FBI agents had been watching persons attending the rally whose presence was deemed to prevent the possibility of violence.

"Let me ask you: if the FBI trailed a suspect to a ball game of the Cincinnati Reds, would Johnny Bench have a reason to think he was under surveillance?"

Mitchell said he did not want to mislead his audience, he said there have been investigations of congressmen "where there is probable cause to believe a federal crime has been committed."

"On rare occasions over the years, a member of Congress has indeed been the subject of normal investigative procedures -- but not wire-tapping," he said.

Senate Committee Approves End To College Deferments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has voted to let President Nixon end draft deferments for college students—starting with those entering school after the current academic year.

The provision approved at a committee session Friday differs from the House-passed measure enabling the President to carry out his announced plan of ending the deferments retroactive to April 23, 1970.

The Senate panel, nearing final action on a draft extension bill close to what Nixon asked, decided authority to end student deferments should take effect when the bill is enacted.

This presumably will be sometime before the current draft law runs out June 30.

Any college student who entered school before that date would be free to complete his four-year undergraduate program before becoming subject to the draft.

Nixon, in announcing he would end deferments if given authority, said this would apply to students at junior colleges and in apprentice and technical programs as well.

On another key point the committee voted Friday to keep a provision permitting conscientious objectors to serve two years in an alternative civilian service. The House had voted to increase this to three years.

After two years' service, the objector, like other draftees, would stay in a reserve status for another three years.

The Senate committee expects to finish work on the two-year draft extension next week, possibly Tuesday. It will come up in the Senate about two weeks later.

A Senate-House conference committee will have to resolve differences in the two versions.

Besides the date for ending deferments and the service for conscientious objectors, the two bills contain vastly different pay-increase provisions.

Mitchell Leaves Wife At Home

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell drew laughter Friday night when he jokingly told the Kentucky Bar Association meeting here why his wife Martha didn't make the trip.

"My unguided missile thought it would be more productive if she stayed home and worked on the Supreme Court," Mitchell said.

He was referring to Mrs. Mitchell's quoted criticism of a Supreme Court decision approving school busing in the South to achieve racial balance in the schools.

Government Buildings Shut Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governments law-enforcement and military forces girded for 100,000 demonstrators expected to crowd downtown streets of the nation's capital today in a promised peaceful protest of the Indochina war.

Through the night and early hours, hitch-hiking, back-packing demonstrators by the thousands moved through Washington streets in a jubilant flow to the Mall.

Meantime, jeep convoys of rifle-toting Military Police sped into the underground garage of the New Executive Office Building one block from the White House.

While sponsors of the protest vowed nonviolent, civil disobedience, many capital store owners, victims of vandalism in past demonstrations, boarded their windows.

At the Justice Department—in response to agency directives—all window blinds were lowered and carefully shuttered to deflect any thrown objects.

And for the first time in memory, hastily erected barricades blocked access to the West Front of the Capitol, where demonstrators planned to end their day-long parading.

Capitol police said the wood-and-wire fencing was merely "to protect the flowers" and not to bar the marchers.

President and Mrs. Nixon are spending the weekend in Camp David, Md. The White House was closed to visitors.

The National Peace Action Coalition called the mass demonstration to protest the war, and to demand "freedom for all political prisoners" and a guaranteed $6,500 annual income for a family of four.

The day of protest followed a week of Capitol Hill lobbying against the war by Vietnam veterans who bitterly ended their demonstrations Friday by casting away their medals and battle ribbons and crutches onto the Capitol steps.

Former Navy Lt. John Kerry who organized the five-day demonstration by 1,000 veterans, said afterward:

"We showed the country how it can be done. You don't have to chant, you don't have to storm the barricades. You do it by persevering."

The veterans were prohibited from camping on the Mall, stayed despite a judicial order upheld by the Supreme Court, and finally were allowed to remain.

5 Lima State Inmates Sent To Facilities Near Homes

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Acting Supt. Theodore Reshetlyo of Lima State Hospital disclosed Friday a plan to have charges dropped against patients who have spent many years in the institution for the criminally insane.

Reshetlyo said five inmates who have spent a total of 163 years at Lima already have been processed under the plan and ordered transferred to mental hospitals near their homes.

The five, he said, are the first of 100 to 150 patients who will have their cases reviewed by a board of two private psychiatrists and Allen County Probate Judge David O. Steiner.

The patients in question, Reshetlyo said, were committed "years ago" by the courts.

"Finally we decided they would never be restored to reason and be able to stand trial," he said.

He added that the patients being considered by the board "are not violent or dangerous."

Of the patients already ordered transferred, Reshetlyo said, one is a 49-year-old Columbus man who has been in the hospital since 1940 after being charged with the theft of three gallons of gasoline.

Another is a 55-year-old Cleveland man who was accused 22 years ago of passing a bad check.

Others are a 60-year-old Midletown man charged with murder 32 years ago, a 51-year-old Conneaut man charged in 1944 with assault with intent to commit rape and a 71-year-old Winchester man, who in his own words was sent to the hospital in 1930 "for a while" pending sentencing on a rape conviction.

Asked about the transfers, Atty. Gen. William J. Brown said, "There probably are people up there who should be released."

Final Services For Duvalier Scheduled Today

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Described by his son as "the soul of his fatherland," Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier received the final homage of his family and friends today.

The frail former doctor who ruled Haiti for nearly 14 years, will be buried a few blocks from the palace which was his home and power base in the black republic.

Following a service in the palace conducted by Roman Catholic Archbishop Francois Wolff-Ligone and a 101-gun salute the funeral procession will move to the national cemetery and Duvalier will be buried in the family crypt.

Jean Claude Duvalier, 19, successor to the 64-year-old president who died Wednesday of heart complications and diabetes, met Friday night with fellow students at the University of Haiti. Palace officials said the chubby, teen-age president repeatedly described his father to them as "the soul of his fatherland."

U.S. Planes Duel North Viet MIG, SAMs

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers duelled Friday with a Soviet-made MIG interceptor and came under heavy antiaircraft fire over North Vietnam in the sixth day of intensified air activity over the North, the U.S. Command disclosed today.

The command said one American aircraft "received minor" damage. The U.S. planes were attacking North Vietnamese antiaircraft defenses, but results of the raids were not known, the command said.

The activity was the heaviest in a six-day period since the halt in the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.

U.S. planes have made four times as many so-called protective reaction strikes this year as the U.S. Command announced during all of 1970.

The latest air action was triggered as the U.S. planes were flying bombing missions over the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos or photo reconnaissance over the North.

At least 10 U.S. Navy planes and one MIG were involved, and North Vietnamese gunners fired seven surface-to-air missiles—SAMs—at the U.S. aircraft.

While action focused on the North, U.S. B52 heavy bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up heavy attacks on North Vietnamese supply points and routes along the 300-mile Ho Chi Minh trail network, along the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam and just to the east of the A Shau Valley, one of the exit points of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

More than 30 B52s dropped nearly 1,000 tons of bombs on the North Vietnamese positions. The U.S. Command reported two American helicopters were shot down inside South Vietnam Friday while supporting South Vietnamese forces in the Mekong Delta and far to the north in operation Lam Son 720 centered at the A Shau Valley near the Laotian frontier. There were no U.S. casualties in the two losses.

Viet Cong forces stepped up their attacks in the coastal lowland province of Quang Ngai, south of Da Nang, killing seven Americans and wounding 22.

All seven U. S. troops were killed by a 105mm artillery round captured by the Viet Cong and rigged as a booby-trap. The booby-trap also wounded 12 E.S. soldiers. The others were wounded in three mortar attacks.

Military spokesmen gave this breakdown of the air incidents: —Two U.S. Navy F4 fighter-bombers from the carrier Kitty Hawk were on a bombing mission over the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos when they were diverted to pursue the MIG21 over the Mu Gia and Ban Kai passes.

No contact was made with the MIG. Pursuit was abandoned. (Continued on Page 10)

"Finally we decided they would never be restored to reason and be able to stand trial," he said.

He added that the patients being considered by the board "are not violent or dangerous."

Of the patients already ordered transferred, Reshetlyo said, one is a 49-year-old Columbus man who has been in the hospital since 1940 after being charged with the theft of three gallons of gasoline.

Another is a 55-year-old Cleveland man who was accused 22 years ago of passing a bad check.

Others are a 60-year-old Middletown man charged with murder 32 years ago, a 51-year-old Conneaut man charged in 1944 with assault with intent to commit rape and a 71-year-old Winchester man, who in his own words was sent to the hospital in 1930 "for a while" pending sentencing on a rape conviction.

Asked about the transfers, Atty. Gen. William J. Brown said, "There probably are people up there who should be released."

Shade Trees Need Fertilizer

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Trees, as other plants, must have essential mineral elements for desired growth and health. This is often difficult to understand when one observes trees growing in natural areas for many decades with no additions of fertilizer.

However, when these trees are transplanted to the man-made landscape, soil and environmental conditions are changed to the extent that fertilizers must be added periodically.

If a tree is growing in a fertile, loamy soil, the need for added fertilizer will be reduced. Most trees in the landscape, however, are not planted in optimum soil and added fertilizer is beneficial.

The following general recommendations apply to trees in average landscape situations.

FERTILIZER Type — Any complete fertilizer, high in nitrogen is satisfactory for trees. The ratio of nitrogen, potassium, and phosphorus should be approximately 3-1-1 and fertilizers such as 12-4-4, 15-5-5 or 10-6-4 are recommended. Since trees are not fertilized frequently, it is recommended that 1/4 to 1-3 of the nitrogen be in an organic or other "slow-release" form.

Frequency of Application — Trees should be fertilized once every two or three years either in the fall from October through late November or in spring from early March through late May. Moisture conditions are usually most satisfactory at these times.

Rate of Application — The rate of fertilizer recommended will vary with tree size and the extent of the root system; however, a "rule-of-thumb" is to apply fertilizer at the rate of 5 to 6 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1000 square feet of soil surface under the spread of the branches. The surface area under the branch spread can be calculated as follows: Surface Area, equals radius 2 x 3.14. (The radius is the distance from the trunk to the edge of the branch spread.) For example — a tree with a total branch spread of 36 feet would have a radius of 18 feet. According to the formula, the area would equal 18x18x3.14, or 1,017 square feet. Considering the recommendation of 5 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1000 square feet, one would apply approximately 50 pounds of fertilizer such as 10-6-4. (A 10-6-4 fertilizer contains 10 per cent nitrogen, and 10 per cent of 50 pounds will give the desired 5 pounds of actual nitrogen.)

This rate of fertilizer is similar to that recommended for bluegrass lawns, but it is important to note that this amount would be applied to the tree in a single application and to lawns in 3 applications or more.

Methods of Application — The selection of the proper method will depend on the plant cover under the trees, the soil conditions, and the amount of time and labor available to apply the fertilizer.

1. Surface Application — This is the easiest and fastest way to apply fertilizer since little or no equipment is necessary and there is little labor or application cost. It is the most effective means of applying fertilizer to newly planted trees or to trees where there is no vegetation on the ground under the branch spread. As the name indicates, it simply means spreading the recommended amount of fertilizer uniformly on the surface of the soil under the branches. As indicated previously, the recommended 5 lbs. actual nitrogen rate is high for a single application when grass or other plants are under the tree. Therefore, it is necessary to apply the fertilizer in 2 or 3 applications with thorough watering after each application. From the aspect of appearance, grass will possibly be damaged or grow excessively where the fertilizer has been applied. It is important to note that phosphorus does not readily penetrate deep into the soil and this will not be the most effective means of applying this element.

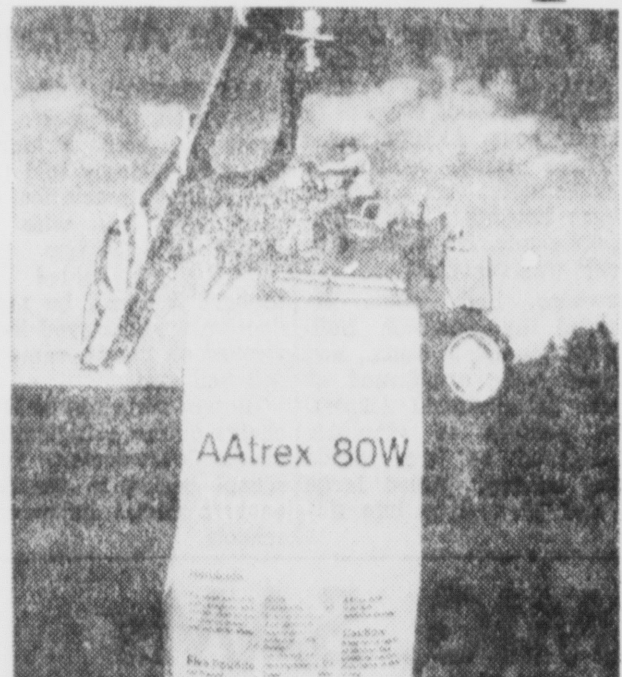

2. Hydro-Fertil Application — This technique involves the use of a 36 in. lance which is a thin tube, pointed and perforated at the end. This is attached to a hose or sprayer and fertilizer solution is injected into the ground at the desired depth through the tube. It is a relatively rapid means of placing fertilizer below the surface of the soil and, at the same time, irrigating the tree. It should be noted that homeowner applicator devices which attach to a hose are not too effective for applying fertilizer since the amount applied is far below the recommended level. The lance should be inserted to a depth of 18 in. on 2 to 3 ft. centers in the area under the branches.

3. DRILL Hole Application — Holes are punched or drilled in the soil under the branches and fertilizer then placed in the holes. This technique has the advantage of aerating the soil as well as placing the fertilizer in the root zone below the surface. It also permits addition of organic or granular material which will aid in improving soil conditions. This method is especially beneficial of the tree is growing in compacted or poorly aerated soil and the improved aeration may be more effective in stimulating new root growth than the fertilizer.

One disadvantage is the amount of labor necessary to make the many holes necessary to obtain even distribution. An auger, punch bar, or crow-bar can be used and the job can be done most easily when the soil is moist. The holes should be made on 12 to 18 inch centers, at a depth of 15 to 18 inches, beginning 2 feet from the trunk and extending in concentric circles to a line slightly beyond the edge of the branches. Since most fertilizer elements do not move laterally

ALFALFA WEEVIL

First application of an insecticide in the preventive program should have been made in Pickaway County near April 1.

If the preventive program was not followed alfalfa fields need to be checked closely. Refer to leaflet L 130, 1971, for proper timing of the larval control program. This leaflet is available by calling the County Extension Office.

Don't confuse alfalfa weevil with clover leaf weevil. Clover leaf weevil usually does not require chemical control. A spray control program is needed when 50 - 75 per cent of the leaves show some feeding — not when 50 - 75 per cent of the leaves are eaten off.

CATTLE GRUBS

By rubbing your hands over the backs of cattle (palpation) one can determine the severity of cattle grub infestations within a herd. Most grub control studies have emphasized the packer loss from carcass trim and spoiled hides. However, more and more packers will be passing these losses back to the cattle producer in the form of lower prices for untreated cattle.

In cooperation with Don Pollock and Tom Ricer, Monroe County Extension Agents, over 50 head of feedlot cattle were involved in a grub control demonstration near Woodsfield, Ohio. On Oct. 31, 1970, one-third of the feeders were treated with Ruelene SR, one-third treated with Neguvon and one-third left untreated. Grub control was determined by palpation on Jan. 23, 1971 and Mar. 6, 1971. All feeders were native Ohio cattle and treatments were made by the pour-on method.

In the Ruelene SR treated cattle only 1 out of 16 animals was infested with only 1 grub found. In the Neguvon treated cattle only 3 out of 15 animals were infested, each averaging 1 grub. In the untreated cattle 21 out of 22 animals were infested with an overall infestation of 6 grubs per animal. Grub infestations ranged as high as 20 grubs per animal in some cases. Packers indicate that five or more grubs per animal warrant a price discount.

In summary, our demonstrations have shown that certain grubicides are highly effective in eliminating ox warbles. For specific control measures, refer to the 1971 extension bulletin No. 473, "Control of Insect and Mite Pests of Livestock, Poultry and Farm Buildings," available at your County Extension Office.

to any extent, the more holes made the better the distribution over the root zone.

The recommended amount of fertilizer should be distributed uniformly among the holes using a funnel and a small can as a measuring device. The hole should be filled with a soil amendment such as peat moss, calcine clay, perlite, crushed stone, etc.

Fertilizer is no cure-all for plant problems and must be used as one of the tools for improving growth and health of the plant, which in some instances, will make a tree more resistant to certain plant pests.

It seems like we live with a lot of plastic, but more's coming. In 20 years, 50 per cent of our furniture and furnishings may be plastic. By the end of the 70's plastics will be found at every price level in home furnishings, predicts Dorothy Teater, Extension Housing and Furnishing Specialist, the Ohio State University.

These man-made materials are no longer substitutes for other material, such as wood or metal. Plastics have their own characteristics; some are superior to natural materials.

Just what are plastics? These materials get their name because they are soft and moldable. They are formed by heat or pressure or both from oxygen, carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen.

There are two major groups of plastic — thermoplastic and thermoset plastic. Thermoplastics may be softened and re-shaped by heating, but tend to deteriorate with each reprocessing. Once formed, thermoset plastics are hard and rigid and cannot be reshaped. They can stand heat higher than the boiling point of water; some thermoset plastics resist heat as well as wood does.

Many plastics from both groups are already familiar to us. For instance, in the thermoset group is found polyesters — as fibers, this plastic is used for carpet, curtain fabrics and pillows. Polyester can also be made in a solid form and used for molded decorations and carvings on furniture.

Polyurethane is another thermoset plastic and it comes in a solid foam form used as mattresses, refrigerator insulation and chair seats. A third type of thermoset plastic is the phenolics made into laminated hard surfaces commonly used on counter tops, phonograph records and telephones.

We find the moplastics in the home in acrylics, polypropylene and vinyl. Acrylic fibers are used in carpet and blankets. Acrylic is also an ingredient in enamel paints used for appliances. Certain types of light diffusers are made of acrylics.

Nylon and polypropylene are made into draperies, indoor-outdoor carpet and see-through packaging materials. Vinyl can be a hard surface flooring material or a soft, leather-like upholstery fabric.

Most of these plastics have earned a place in the home, because of their qualities that meet today's furnishings needs for durable, easy-to-clean, attractive, reasonably-priced materials.

1. Promise to kill every kind of weed in every kind of field in every kind of country in the U.S. Nothing's that perfect.

What Preforan® soybean herbicide will do:

1. Give you more consistent control of most problem Midwest annual broad-leaf and grass weeds (wild mustard, jimson, foxtail, etc.) than any other herbicide.
2. Save you time and money you may be wasting because it needs no incorporation.
3. Relieve you of the problem of "rain-fall in 10 days." Preforan needs only the moisture your beans need to germinate.
4. Perform in light or heavy soils with just one application rate for most kinds of soil.
5. End the problem of herbicide volatility and drift.
6. Give good residual control of weeds yet leave no residue in the soil.
7. Work under less than ideal weather conditions and leave no residue harmful to the environment when used according to directions.
8. Offer high soybean crop safety.

1. Promise to kill every kind of weed in every kind of field in every kind of county in the U.S. Nothing's that perfect.

What Preforan® soybean herbicide will do:

1. Give you more consistent control of most problem Midwest annual broad-leaf and grass weeds (wild mustard, jimson, foxtail, etc.) than any other herbicide.
2. Save you time and money you may be wasting because it needs no incorporation.
3. Relieve you of the problem of "rain-fall in 10 days." Preforan needs only the moisture your beans need to germinate.
4. Perform in light or heavy soils with just one application rate for most kinds of soil.
5. End the problem of herbicide volatility and drift.
6. Give good residual control of weeds yet leave no residue in the soil.
7. Work under less than ideal weather conditions and leave no residue, harmful to the environment when used according to directions.
8. Offer high soybean crop safety.

Farmers, Ranchers First Concern Of Ag Department

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, in recent Congressional testimony stated that the first concern of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is with the farmers and ranchers of this country.

Secretary Hardin also said, "Now comprising less than five per cent of the total population, they continue to produce food in abundance for all the people of America and hungry people elsewhere, as well as essential raw materials for industry. Their Number One problem is inadequate income."

Pickaway County farm program official George E. Stump drew attention to the expressed hope of the USDA Secretary that the new farm programs "will contribute to the long-term improvement of the economic position of those engaged in farming and ranching."

In Pickaway County some 1,175 farms signed up this spring for participation in the feed grain and wheat set-aside programs.

In his discussion of the 1971 programs resulting from the Agricultural Act of 1970, Secretary Hardin told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee:

"Under the new programs, many farmers will have increased opportunities to make decisions on their own about what and how much they produce. This gives added importance to information concerning supply, demand, price, production costs and program objectives."

"Programs for basic price-supported crops have been changed in four major respects:

"(1) To eliminate the requirement that farmers plant a certain acreage to be eligible for price support benefits.

"(2) To eliminate the requirement that they limit their planting of specific crops to acreage allotments less diversion.

"(3) To eliminate cross-compliance — each farm stands on its own with respect to the set-aside.

"(4) To eliminate some of the inequities associated with conserving bases — administrative action is bringing about changes to reflect present-day realities of changes on farms.

"It is obviously too early to gauge the effects of the new commodity programs. It is reasonable to assume, however, that the removal of the requirement to plant for program benefits, and the removal also of the limitation of plantings to allotments, will encourage shifts in patterns of production, both within and between historic production areas."

"If early planting intentions

a group and the advisers have agreed to go ahead with it.

A meeting will be held 8 p.m. April 28, at the 4-H Grange Building for those interested in a 4-H marching and concert band. A minimum of 50 members will be necessary for this group. Weekly rehearsals will be scheduled for June and July, only, with approximately four performances including the state fair.

Since band is a project, anyone interested in 4-H Band will not be required to carry another 4-H project. Anyone interested, but unable to attend the meeting on Wednesday should contact one of the advisers, Drexel Poling, James Kibby or Mrs. Sterling Poling.

Blackbird Control For Corn Fields

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Farmers in Pickaway County have experienced considerable damage to their corn in past years. Red-winged blackbirds are primarily responsible for this damage. Damage estimates conducted by Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife personnel in 1970 indicated a state-wide loss of approximately $1.1 million worth of field corn.

A program to reduce this damage, similar to one used last year, is being offered the farmers of Ohio where damage occurs. This project is being conducted by the Division of Wildlife Services, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, of the United States Department of the Interior. Similar programs are underway in other areas of Ohio.

Avitrol 200 (4-Amino pyridine) treated cracked corn will be applied to standing field corn. The material will be applied by aircraft at a rate of one pound per acre. Most fields require three applications while the corn is in the milk stage, the most susceptible stage to bird damage. Upon eating a treated kernel of the bait, the blackbird is affected in such a way as to cause it to react irrationally and send out distress calls. These calls scare the other birds from the field. After a flock of birds is scared from a particular field several times, they tend to avoid the field. There is very little danger to other birds and animals.

Similar test programs, conducted in Ohio during 1968, 1969, and 1970 reduced the damage 50 to 75 per cent. Similar results could be expected this year.

Cost to the farmers who participate in the program will be approximately $2.25 per acre of corn. This is the complete cost for three applications. The use of this material is restricted to field corn only.

Interested farmers should contact the local County Extension Office for further details.

Barely Made It

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. C. B. Schafer Jr., Ann Arbor, Mich., was throwing food to the polar bears at the Toledo zoo when her wedding band slipped off and sailed into an almost empty moat at the bear island. Supervisor Leonard Romans and other zoo workers rigged a scraper device used to clean animal cages. The ring was snagged just as a big male bear spotted it.

Lasso plus Lorox[®]
tank mix is your best bet for great
weed control!

Just tank mix Lasso liquid from Monsanto, with Lorox 50W for broad spectrum control. Yes sir, Lasso plus Lorox gets grasses such as the Foxtails, Crabgrass and Fall Panicum, and tough broadleaves like Pigweed, Butternut, Ragweed, Smartweed and Lambsquarters.

Lasso EC plus Lorox has proven to be the ideal broad spectrum weed control combination for soybeans in the Midwest. If you used Lasso before, you know how well it works. Now get even better grass and broadleaf control with a Lasso plus Lorox tank mixture. It could be one of your wisest decisions this year for higher soybean yields and better profits.

For the correct ratio of Lasso to Lorox best suited to your soil and crop, see your Farm Chemical Supplier now. Ask him for one of the Lasso handy rate and application booklets.

Farmers, Ranchers First Concern Of Ag Department

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, in recent Congressional testimony stated that the first concern of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is with the farmers and ranchers of this country.

Secretary Hardin also said, "Now comprising less than five per cent of the total population, they continue to produce food in abundance for all the people of America and hungry people elsewhere, as well as essential raw materials for industry. Their Number One problem is inadequate income."

Pickaway County farm program official George E. Stump drew attention to the expressed hope of the USDA Secretary that the new farm programs "will contribute to the long-term improvement of the economic position of those engaged in farming and ranching." In Pickaway County some 1,175 farms signed up this spring for participation in the feed grain and wheat set-aside programs.

In his discussion of the 1971 programs resulting from the Agricultural Act of 1970, Secretary Hardin told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee:

"Under the new programs, many farmers will have increased opportunities to make decisions on their own about what and how much they produce. This gives added importance to information concerning supply, demand, price, production costs and program objectives."

"Programs for basic price-supported crops have been changed in four major respects: (1) To eliminate the requirement that farmers plant a certain acreage to be eligible for price support benefits."

"(2) To eliminate the requirement that they limit their planting of specific crops to acreage allotments less diversion."

"(3) To eliminate cross-compliance — each farm stands on its own with respect to the set-aside."

"(4) To eliminate some of the inequities associated with conserving bases — administrative action is bringing about changes to reflect present-day realities of changes on farms."

"It is obviously too early to gauge the effects of the new commodity programs. It is reasonable to assume, however, that the removal of the requirement to plant for removal benefits, and the removal also of the limitation of plantings to allotments, will encourage shifts in patterns of production, both within and between historic production areas."

"If early planting intentions

A meeting will be held 8 p.m. April 28, at the 4-H Grange Building for those interested in a 4-H marching and concert band. A minimum of 50 members will be necessary for this group. Weekly rehearsals will be scheduled for June and July, only, with approximately four performances including the state fair.

Since band is a project, anyone interested in 4-H Band will not be required to carry another 4-H project. Anyone interested, but unable to attend the meeting on Wednesday should contact one of the advisers, Drexel Poling, James Kibby or Mrs. Sterling Poling.

are carried out, we expect crop acreage to increase about 6 per cent over 1970 and 9 per cent over 1969 — or 10 million and 15 million acres respectively. Acreage diverted as a result of the reduced set-aside requirement is estimated at 35.1 million, which is 21.8 million less than the 56.9 million held out of production last year.

"This year's demand for agricultural commodities is projected to exceed the quantities harvested in 1970 by some 20 million acres of output. The demand is being met from private stocks and by the release of Commodity Credit Corporation - owned and resal inventories."

"By fall the feed grain CCC loan holdings are likely to have been reduced about one-half, from 29.8 million tons last October to an estimated 14.8 million tons next October. This trend will reduce the pressure of loan stocks on markets and prices."

"The draw-down of CCC stocks demonstrates the effect of setting price support rates at or just below world price levels, thereby opening up channels of trade. The Agricultural Act of 1970 eliminates those loan escalating features that have threatened in the past to price us out of international markets. This new direction can cultivate market demand, and is already doing so."

"Farm exports in 1970 hit a record $7.2 billion, 22 per cent above the previous year and 4 per cent above the previous record in 1968. Not long ago it could be said that one out of every five harvested acres was producing for the world market. Today it is nearer one out of every four — that is how the farmer's market is changing, and how important the world market has become. And the trend is upward."

Agricultural exports at the present time are running 16 per cent above a year ago ... "Given anything approaching free market conditions around the world, the United States has a comparative advantage in several of our important agricultural commodities. This country should, therefore, continue to look to agriculture for larger and larger contributions to balance of trade and foreign exchange. And we should look at our exports as at least a plus factor in dealing with our foremost farm problem, inadequate farm income."

Interested farmers should contact the local County Extension Office for further details.

County Extension Agent,

Farmers in Pickaway County have experienced considerable damage to their corn in past years. Red-winged blackbirds are primarily responsible for this damage. Damage estimates conducted by Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife personnel in 1970 indicated a state-wide loss of approximately $1.1 million worth of field corn.

A program to reduce this damage, similar to one used last year, is being offered the farmers of Ohio where damage occurs. This project is being conducted by the Division of Wildlife Services, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, of the United States Department of the Interior. Similar programs are underway in other areas of Ohio.

Avitrol 200 (4-Amino pyridine) treated cracked corn will be applied to standing field corn. The material will be applied by aircraft at a rate of one pound per acre. Most fields require three applications while the corn is in the milk stage, the most susceptible stage to bird damage. Upon eating a treated kernel of the bait, the blackbird is affected in such a way as to cause it to react irrationally and send out distress calls. These calls scare the other birds from the field. After a flock of birds is scared from a particular field several times, they tend to avoid the field. There is very little danger to other birds and animals.

Similar test programs, conducted in Ohio during 1968, 1969, and 1970 reduced the damage 50 to 75 per cent. Similar results could be expected this year.

Cost to the farmers who participate in the program will be approximately $2.25 per acre of corn. This is the complete cost for three applications. The use of this material is restricted to field corn only.

Interested farmers should contact the local County Extension Office for further details.

growers...

Lasso[®] plus Lorox[®]
tank mix is your best bet for great
weed control!

Just tank mix Lasso liquid from Monsanto, with Lorox 50W for broad spectrum control. Yes sir, Lasso plus Lorox gets grasses such as the Foxtails, Crabgrass and Fall Panicum, and tough broadleaves like Pigweed, Buttonweed, Ragweed, Smartweed and Lambsquarters.

Lasso EC plus Lorox has proven to be the ideal broad spectrum weed control combination for soybeans in the Midwest. If you used Lasso before, you know how well it works. Now get even better grass and broadleaf control with a Lasso plus Lorox tank mixture. It could be one of your wisest decisions this year for higher soybean yields and better profits.

An Out On POWs

The internment of American prisoners of war in a neutral country is not the same as freeing them, but certainly their treatment in any legitimately neutral country would be so great an improvement as to make worthwhile the suggestion by Saigon that neutral internment be considered for all prisoners on both sides who are sick, wounded or have been held for a prolonged period.

Saigon's proposal, seconded by President Nixon, does provide the North Vietnamese an out to a question which has become particularly uncomfortable to them. World opinion is on the side of humane treatment of the prisoners, and ample evidence exists to prove Hanoi has been anything but humane with American prisoners it holds.

Central Press Wire:

Britain's telephone service now tells bedtime stories to kids if they dial a certain number in the evening. Earlier in the day adults can get hints on how to achieve better gardens by dialing the same number. It's all the same—fairly tales.

The garden hints, we understand, cover all types of backyard culture — from an earful about corn culture to tips on asparagus.

Bedtime stories for the small fry give a new meaning to the name of modern telephone receivers — cord phones.

Since British telephone service is operated by that country's Post Office this departure in giving bedtime story service and garden hints to phone subscribers naturally has the government's stamp of approval.

DO YOU ever wax nostalgic about the days when passenger trains crisscrossed the country day and night? Herman Weinberg has located a motel at Sioux Falls, S.D., where a recording of the lonesome whistle of an old steam locomotive lulls guests to sleep. The rooms all are converted Pullman cars, and the attendants dress as Pullman porters.

House Detective Lesser, of a Floridian resort hotel, had had his eye on a Mr. Horace Snaggletooth ever since that worthy had checked in, and now, after Mr. S. had called to have his bill ready, the stalwart dick moved in for the kill. Bursting into the departing guest's room, he scored one miss, but one smash hit. The miss: there wasn't one stolen towel, spoon, or desk light in Mr. Snaggletooth's suitcase. The hit: there WAS, however, a beautiful chambermaid in his grip.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Cancer of the breast may be detected earlier and treated more effectively through a technique developed by Dr. Denise Ouimet-Oliva, of the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal.

Dr. Oliva, an X-ray specialist, has shown that cancer can be traced by X-ray and used as a guide for suspected cancer.

The injected air stays for 24 to 38 hours, and then is automatically absorbed. This technique is not meant to replace any of those now available, but rather to supplement them for more accurate and more rapid diagnosis.

Another approach to the problem of breast cancer has been described by Dr. Sharad Deodhar, of the Cleveland Clinic.

As a student of immunology, Dr. Deodhar is devoting his scientific research to learning how cancer cells and normal cells behave towards each other after breast surgery.

Research of this kind continues all over the world. Time and particularly money for basic research are the real forces in the search for the answer to cancer.

A most comprehensive study of high blood pressure has recently been published by Dr. Milton Mendlovitz of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

It outlines the vast complexity of high blood pressure, beginning with the hereditary factors, and involving the elaborate chemical mechanism that affects the blood pressure.

This kind of scientific study is gratifying to the physician, who can translate it to the treatment of his own patients.

Endless ramifications in the study point to the greater possibility that all forms of high blood pressure may yet be preventable and, most certainly, controlled.

Infections of the urinary tract are now being prevented by continuous treatment with chemicals that sterilize the urine.

This conclusion was arrived at by Dr. Richard B. Freeman, of the University of Rochester School of Medicine, who has treated more than 200 patients with special drugs.

Many of the bacterial infections that plagued these patients seemed to be avoided.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Life has its good days and its bad days. Not all our hours are lit by wine and roses.

We are not always a bonfire or a bouquet to ourselves. Sometimes a clinker in the eye obscures a rainbow.

There are the bad days to keep even the largest ego humble.

Such as when: Times were so bad that when you lost a tooth you woke up the next morning and found a nickel instead of a dime under your pillow.

You asked her for a date and she told you frankly that she was going to be terribly, terribly busy for a long, long time.

It was the last hurdle in the race and you thought you were home ahead, but then your hind foot hit the hurdle and you landed on your elbow and when you got up your arm dangled oddly awry and you felt dizzy and sick at your stomach.

She said she'd meet you there but she never showed up.

The doctor said the bifocals would give you a different outlook, but when you put them on and stared at yourself in the mirror all you saw was another fat middle-aged man wearing bifocals.

She said when you married her that you could have all your wishes, and how does that bear on the fact that now you do all the dishes?

You never had acne in your life before, and then on the morning of the senior prom you awoke with a face that looked as if it had been bombarded by strawberries.

Five years to the day after you told the boy you didn't want him as a son-in-law, he and your daughter took you and your wife to dinner and showed you a paycheck twice the size of your own.

And then there was the day that the third consecutive red-head in your life told you goodbye even before you had felt you had given her an adequate hello, and you realized that you were just one more of those guys doomed to be unloved by a red-haired girl.

Yes, there are days on which the only reason to get up is so you can lie back down in bed again and count your wounds.

Uses Of Calley

By JEFFERY HART

SOLDEN, Austria—There are many things to be said regarding the conviction of Lt. William Calley, but let us move without ado to the essence of the matter, which is political. It is perfectly obvious now how the Calley case will be played, and how it will take its place in the protracted military and political process known as the Vietnamese War.

That process may be compared to one of those games of championship chess — very deliberate, each considered move evoking a countermove, each move having its meaning in relation to the overall process. Let us place the Calley affair in this kind of perspective.

During 1967 and 1968, on the crucial American home front, the anti-war forces — much of the media, a substantial number of opinion makers, and the variegated "peace movement" — played the theme of American casualties for all it was worth. A good symbol of this was the large demonstration outside the White House in which each protester carried a placard bearing the name of a G. I. killed in Vietnam. The casualty theme was pervasive, and TV relentlessly stressed the weekly toll.

Toward the end of 1968, it became clear that American opinion would no longer tolerate weekly totals in the 75-100 range. If the war were to be pursued to anything other than a Communist victory, therefore, American casualties had to be drastically reduced.

All right, said President Nixon, in effect, and made his countermove on the board. The South Vietnamese would prove a tough nut for the Communists to crack, even without large American ground forces, provided they received intensified American air support.

That airborne firepower has exacted and will continue to exact a terrible price on the Communist units.

And this, of course, is where Calley comes in. Watch how the move develops. No longer will the anti-war theme be "American casualties" — Nixon has reduced them to the vanishing point — but the civilians killed or displaced by the use of air-power. Calley will be projected as the symbol of crimes against civilians, and a worldwide campaign will be launched using the civilian theme. Much will be heard of Nuremberg and war crimes, and the rhetoric will be humanitarian. The point, however, will be to checkmate Nixon's use of air-power.

Thus there has already appeared a very long piece by Neil Sheehan of the N. Y. Times Washington bureau. First featured in the Times Sunday

Book Review, then reprinted internationally, Sheehan's piece has a lot to say about the conventions governing warfare, not much of it very illuminating where contemporary revolutionary warfare is concerned, and Sheehan also indulges in inept comparisons between General Yamashita and Lyndon B. Johnson. Several thousand words into his piece he, at last, gets down to business:

"Mr. Nixon is using the same air-power tactics in Laos and Cambodia that his predecessor employed in South Vietnam . . . Mr. Nixon has also sensed even more keenly the political convenience of this weapon" — i.e. that it both checkmates the Communists AND reduces American casualties. Throughout, the connection is made between Calley's actions at My Lai and the civilian casualties produced by the air tactic. The political point is clear enough: we can't help the South Vietnamese with U. S. troops, and we can't help them without them.

This campaign, to be sure, is only the latest move in the overall process, and there is no reason to think it is the last. In order not to be taken in, it is only necessary to grasp the central point.

Legislature Report

By MYRL H. SHOEMAKER
State Representative

The Ohio General Assembly approved a bill that calls for stiff penalties for curbing the carrying of guns by criminals.

The measure would make it an offense in itself to carry a gun while committing a crime. First offenders could receive an additional one to three years in prison. Second offenders would face two to five extra years, without being eligible for parole or probation.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where two years ago a similar measure died in the Judiciary Committee.

Armed forces veterans of Ohio may receive a ten per cent fee reduction as undergraduates at any state university or college if House Bill 446 passes.

Any veteran who has received an award for "Meritorious Conduct" while serving his country may also receive either four semesters or six quarters of free education under the provisions of the bill.

The bill, proposed by House Democrats, would allow the ten per cent fee reduction for "No more than six semesters or nine quarters of the academic year." This would add to benefits already available to ex-GIs through the GI bill.

The bill also includes provisions for veterans receiving the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Air Force Cross, the Distinguished Service Cross, or the Navy Cross, from August 5, 1964, until "The end of hostilities as declared by the President or Congress." These veterans would receive limited free education and the ten per cent fee reduction.

A bill that would authorize the board of education of a school district to submit special purpose tax levies was passed this week in the Ohio House.

If the measure passes the Senate, a board of education would be allowed to levy a tax rate necessary to yield a specified amount of revenue. There would be limits for the special purposes to "Capital improvements or specific emergency needs including due, outstanding, and unpaid liabilities for goods or services received."

To levy the special purpose tax the board of education of any school district could at any time declare by resolution that the total revenue of the district, included the revenue from all levies and state and federal sources, is insufficient to pay the cost of capital improvements or specific emergency needs.

The resolution would specify the single purpose for which the revenue would be utilized; the revenue required to be collected in each year of the levy, the number of years the levy would be imposed, and the date of election.

There is currently a bill in the Ohio Legislature which would create a State Consumer Affairs Department which would require each county to have its own department.

The bill calls for the Director of Consumer Affairs to receive and investigate complaints and to initiate investigations. An advisory committee of nine individuals appointed by the Governor and representing consumer and business interests would work with the Director.

The bill would make various "Deceptive trade practices" unlawful and calls for a penalty of not more than $500 for each violation.

Practices spelled out include: Bait and switch tactics, calling old goods new, false price reduction claims, use of exaggeration, innuendo or ambiguity in offering goods or services, false money-back claims, and other "come-ons."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Does foreign aid from an industrially advanced country really help an underdeveloped nation move toward a goal of economic equality? Or could it retard that nation's advance?

Not just Americans, but officials of many other nations have long believed that the question provided its own self-evident answer, and that if the economic answer wasn't convincing it could be buttressed by the moral imperative.

Now a growing segment of businessmen and others concerned with such matters appear to have growing doubts that the assumption is correct.

The chief factor in their doubts is a little publicized speech made last year by a professor at the University of Edinburgh, and condensed recently in a Chase Manhattan Bank publication "without endorsement."

The address, by Prof. Harry Johnson of the University of Chicago and the London School of Economics and Political Science, was sharply critical of the Pearson Report, made late in 1969 and widely acclaimed.

The report, sponsored by the World Bank, was allegedly an effort to revive enthusiasm for foreign aid, and it carried a suggestive title intended to advance that goal: "Partners in Development."

Johnson maintains that the report was "the inevitable result of the conflict between moral conception and the facts of reality that arises with any charitable operation such as development aid or the relief of poverty."

In other words, the moral interpretation distorted the picture. It led to fictions, such as the one, Johnson states, that asserts that nations are really equals, even if one is less endowed by nature. Propaganda, says Johnson.

The professor states that there is a real question of "whether development aid has promoted or retarded development, and if it has promoted it, how significant its influence has been."

He argues that some critics believe aid has encouraged developing countries "to pursue counter-developmental policies and permitted them to preserve archaic social and political structures, and so has retarded rather than promoted modernization."

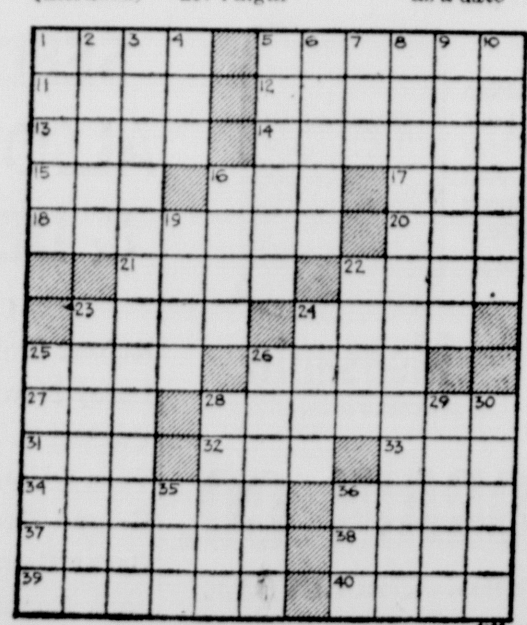

The Pearson Report, he stated, "is unable to adduce any clear evidence that aid has promoted growth. The usefulness of aid in promoting development remains an act of faith."

Johnson believes that the trend of the future may be away from dependence upon the powers of government "to promote development by the use of its powers of control and planning and its economic powers of taxation of its citizens."

DO YOU ever wish nostalgic about the days when passenger trains crisscrossed the country day and night? Herman Weinberg has located a motel at Sioux Falls, S.D., where a recording of the lonesome whistle of an old steam locomotive lulls guests to sleep, the rooms all are converted Pullman cars, and the attendants dress as Pullman porters.

House Detective Lesser, of a Floridian resort hotel, had had his eye on a Mr. Horace Snaggletooth ever since that worthy had checked in, and now, after Mr. S. had called to have his bill ready, the stalwart dick moved in for the kill. Bursting into the departing guest's room, he scored one miss, but one smash hit. The miss: there wasn't one stolen towel, spoon, or desk light in Mr. Snaggletooth's suitcase. The hit: there WAS, however, a beautiful chambermaid in his grip.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Cancer of the breast may be detected earlier and treated more effectively through a technique developed by Dr. Denise Oumet-Oliva, of the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal.

The professor states that there is a real question of "whether development aid has promoted or retarded development, and if it has promoted it, how significant its influence has been."

He argues that some critics believe aid has encouraged developing countries "to pursue counter-developmental policies and permitted them to preserve archaic social and political structures, and so has retarded rather than promoted modernization."

The Pearson Report, he stated, "is unable to adduce any clear evidence that aid has promoted growth. The usefulness of aid in promoting development remains an act of faith."

Johnson believes that the trend of the future may be away from dependence upon the powers of government "to promote development by the use of its powers of control and planning and its economic powers of taxation of its citizens."

Johnson maintains that the report was "the inevitable result of the conflict between moral conception and the facts of reality that arises with any charitable operation such as development aid or the relief of poverty."

A most comprehensive study of high blood pressure has recently been published by Dr. Milton Mendlovitz of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

It outlines the vast complexity of high blood pressure, beginning with the hereditary factors, and involving the elaborate chemical mechanism that affects the blood pressure.

This kind of scientific study is gratifying to the physician, who can translate it to the treatment of his own patients.

Endless ramifications in the study point to the greater possibility that all forms of high blood pressure may yet be preventable and, most certainly, controlled.

Infections of the urinary tract are now being prevented by continuous treatment with chemicals that sterilize the urine.

This conclusion was arrived at by Dr. Richard B. Freeman, of the University of Rochester School of Medicine, who has treated more than 200 patients with special drugs.

Many of the bacterial infections that plagued these patients seemed to be avoided.

Guard Training Undergoes Shift

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Adj. Gen. Dana L. Stewart has told an Ohio National Guard unit to train in Cleveland instead of Ravenna on the weekend a memorial program is planned at Kent State University.

"The adjutant general felt it would be better not to have guardsmen drilling near the campus," said Robert Tenenbaum, press secretary to Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Stewart said the drill site was changed "to make sure there was no misinterpretation of our moves."

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Life has its good days and its bad days. Not all our hours are lit by wine and roses.

We are not always a bonfire or a bouquet to ourselves. Sometimes a clinker in the eye obscures a rainbow.

There are the bad days to keep even the largest ego humble.

Such as when: Times were so bad that when you lost a tooth you woke up the next morning and found a nickel instead of a dime under your pillow.

You asked her for a date and she told you frankly that she was going to be terribly, terribly busy for a long, long time.

It was the last hurdle in the race and you thought you were home ahead, but then your hind foot hit the hurdle and you landed on your elbow and when you got up your arm dangled oddly awry and you felt dizzy and sick at your stomach.

She said she'd meet you there but she never showed up.

The doctor said the bifocals would give you a different outlook, but when you put them on and stared at yourself in the mirror all you saw was another fat middle-aged man wearing bifocals.

She said when you married her that you could have all your wishes, and how does that bear on the fact that now you do all the dishes?

You never had acne in your life before, and then on the morning of the senior prom you awoke with a face that looked as if it had been bombed by strawberries.

Five years to the day after you told the boy you didn't want him as a son-in-law, he and your daughter took you and your wife to dinner and showed you a paycheck twice the size of your own.

And then there was the day that the third consecutive red-head in your life told you goodbye even before you had felt you had given her an adequate hello, and you realized that you were just one more of those guys doomed to be unloved by a red-haired girl.

Yes, there are days on which the only reason to get up is so you can lie back down in bed again and count your wounds.

Uses Of Calley

By JEFFERY HART

SOLDEN, Austria—There are many things to be said regarding the conviction of Lt. William Calley, but let us move without ado to the essence of the matter, which is political. It is perfectly obvious how the Calley case will be played, and how it will take its place in the protracted military and political process known as the Vietnamese War.

That process may be compared to one of those games of championship chess — very deliberate, each considered move evoking a countermove, each move having its meaning in relation to the overall process. Let us place the Calley affair in this kind of perspective.

During 1967 and 1968, on the crucial American home front, the anti-war forces — much of the media, a substantial number of opinion makers, and the variegated "peace movement" — played the theme of American casualties for all it was worth. A good symbol of this was the large demonstration outside the White House in which each protester carried a placard bearing the name of a G. I. killed in Vietnam. The casualty theme was pervasive, and TV relentlessly stressed the weekly total.

Toward the end of 1968, it became clear that American opinion would no longer tolerate weekly totals in the 75-100 range. If the war were to be pursued to anything other than a Communist victory, therefore, American casualties had to be drastically reduced.

All right, said President Nixon, in effect, and made his countermove on the board. The South Vietnamese would prove a tough nut for the Communists to crack, even without large American ground forces, provided they received intensified American air support. That airborne firepower has exacted and will continue to exact a terrible price on the Communist units.

And this, of course, is where Calley comes in. Watch how the move develops. No longer will the anti-war theme be "American casualties" — Nixon has reduced them to the vanishing point — but the civilians killed or displaced by the use of air-power, Calley will be projected as the symbol of crimes against civilians, and a worldwide campaign will be launched using the civilian theme. Much will be heard of Nuremberg and war crimes, and the rhetoric will be humanitarian. The point, however, will be to checkmate Nixon's use of air-power.

Thus there has already appeared a very long piece by Neil Sheehan of the N. Y. Times Washington bureau. First featured in the Times Sunday

Book Review, then reprinted internationally, Sheehan's piece has a lot to say about the conventions governing warfare, not much of it very illuminating where contemporary revolutionary warfare is concerned, and Sheehan also indulges in inept comparisons between General Yamashita and Lyndon B. Johnson. Several thousand words into his piece he, at last, gets down to business.

"Mr. Nixon is using the same air-power tactics in Laos and Cambodia that his predecessor employed in South Vietnam . . . Mr. Nixon has also sensed even more keenly the political convenience of this weapon" — i.e. that it both checkmates the Communists AND reduces American casualties. Throughout, the connection is made between Calley's actions at My Lai and the civilian casualties produced by the air tactic. The political point is clear enough; we can't help the South Vietnamese with U. S. troops, and we can't help them without them.

This campaign, to be sure, is only the latest move in the overall process, and there is no reason to think it is the last. In order not to be taken in, it is only necessary to grasp the central point.

Legislature Report

By MYRL H. SHOEMAKER
State Representative

The Ohio General Assembly approved a bill that calls for stiff penalties for curbing the carrying of guns by criminals.

The measure would make it an offense in itself to carry a gun while committing a crime. First offenders could receive an additional one to three years in prison. Second offenders would face two to five extra years, without being eligible for parole or probation.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where two years ago a similar measure died in the Judiciary Committee.

Armed forces veterans of Ohio may receive a ten per cent fee reduction as undergraduates at any state university or college if House Bill 446 passes.

Any veteran who has received an award for "Meritorious Conduct" while serving his country may also receive either four semesters or six quarters of free education under the provisions of the bill.

The bill, proposed by House Democrats, would allow the ten per cent fee reduction for "No more than six semesters or nine quarters of the academic year." This would add to benefits already available to ex-GI's through the GI bill.

The bill also includes provisions for veterans receiving the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Air Force Cross, the Distinguished Service Cross, or the Navy Cross, from August 5, 1964, until "The end of hostilities as declared by the President or Congress". These veterans would receive limited free education and the ten per cent fee reduction.

A bill that would authorize the board of education of a school district to submit special purpose tax levies was passed this week in the Ohio House.

If the measure passes the Senate, a board of education would be allowed to levy a tax rate necessary to yield a specified amount of revenue. There would be limits for the special purposes to "Capital improvements or specific emergency needs including due, outstanding, and unpaid liabilities for goods or services received."

To levy the special purpose tax the board of education of any school district could at any time declare by resolution that the total revenue of the district, included the revenue from all levies and state and federal sources, is insufficient to pay the cost of capital improvements or specific emergency needs.

The resolution would specify the single purpose for which the revenue would be utilized; the revenue required to be collected in each year of the levy, the number of years the levy would be imposed, and the date of election.

There is currently a bill in the Ohio Legislature which would create a State Consumer Affairs Department which would require each county to have its own department.

The bill calls for the Director of Consumer Affairs to receive and investigate complaints and to initiate investigations. An advisory committee of nine individuals appointed by the Governor and representing consumer and business interests would work with the Director.

The bill would make various "Deceptive trade practices" unlawful and calls for a penalty of not more than $500 for each violation.

Practices spelled out include: Bait and switch tactics, calling old goods new, false price reduction claims, use of exaggeration, innuendo or ambiguity in offering goods or services, false money-back claims, and other "come-ons."

You're Telling Me

By William Ritt
Central Press Writer:

Britain's telephone service now tells bedtime stories to kids if they dial a certain number in the evening. Earlier in the day adults can get hints on how to achieve better gardens by dialing the same number. It's all the same—fairly tales.

The garden hints, we understand, cover all types of backyard culture — from an earful about corn culture to tips on asparagus.

Bedtime stories for the small fry give a new meaning to the name of modern telephone receivers — cradle phones.

Since British telephone service is operated by that country's Post Office this departure in giving bedtime story service and garden hints to phone subscribers naturally has the government's stamp of approval.

Ohio Crop, Weather Situation

Spring fieldwork continues to progress well ahead of usual. Much needed showers in a part of the state kept farmers out of the field an average of only 1 day last week.

Farmers were able to do fieldwork during 13 of the first 16 days of April. Soil moisture supplies were further depleted last week. About one-half of the reporters indicate soil moisture supplies are short. The remainder report adequate supplies, with the exception of a few reporters in northeastern Ohio who indicate surplus amounts.

As of Monday, April 19, plowing for corn and soybeans was 85 per cent completed. This is well ahead of the 60 per cent completed by this date last year and the 1964-69 average of 50 per cent.

Corn planting started in many areas last week. On April 19, about 5 per cent of the state's intended acreage was planted. Oats seeding is four-fifths finished.

USUAL progress is 50 per cent, and last year only 35 per cent of the acreage was seeded. Planting of sugar beets is 85 per cent completed, also well ahead of the 10 per cent planted on April 19 last year, and normal progress of 40 per cent.

Tobacco bed sowing is 85 per cent completed. Last year two-thirds of the beds were seeded by this time and usual progress is 75 per cent. Pre-planting application of Anhydrous ammonia and other fertilizer spreading for intended corn acreage was very active last week.

Livestock are now obtaining about 10 per cent of their forage requirements from pasture. This is slightly less than usual.

Pasture growth in many areas has been retarded by the lack of rain in April. Winter wheat condition remains generally good while alfalfa and clover-timothy meadows are in fair to good condition.

Potato planting is nearly 45 per cent completed. A year ago planting was only 10 per cent finished and usual progress is 20 per cent. Planting, spraying and cultivating of early cabbage was very active last week. Pruning and spraying of fruit trees and trimming and tying of grapes were also major activities.

Verity Is Named Armco Chairman

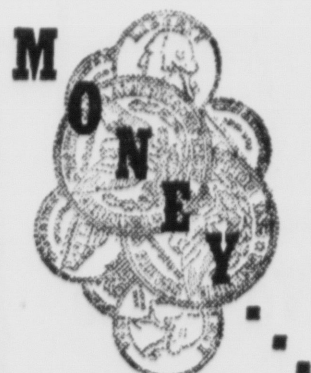

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — C. William Verity Jr., president and chief executive officer of Armco Steel Corp. Friday was elected chairman of the board. Verity succeeds Logan T. Johnston who retired after 45 years with the firm.

Verity, grandson of George M. Verity, founder of the firm, had been a director and president since 1965.

Verity is also a member of the boards of the First National Bank of Middletown, Mead Corp. Dayton, Ohio, Business International, New York, and the Boston Co., Boston, Mass.

Johnston retired April 15 after presiding over the firm's annual stockholders meeting.

Combat Nurse Explains Space Nursing Program

"The Role of the American Nurse in Combat areas is to provide professional skills and moral support for the fighting man on foreign soil." This was one of the points brought out by the speaker Capt. Shirley George, Nursing Co-ordinator of the U.S.A.F. Nursing Corps, as she spoke to the Pickaway County Registered Professional Nurses Assn. for the April meeting.

One of the topics covered briefly by Capt. George was some of the background and history of the Aerospace Nurse Program. The first air evacuation was tried during World War I without much success and then during World War II it proved successful. Air evacuation during the Korean conflict introduced the flight nurse to the scene and was successful and now is used in Vietnam.

The flight nurses today fly in Command of their so-called ward. It has been said of the flight nurse "their ward is the world." This introduced the nurse to the Aerospace program, training with the astronauts for the event of a space station. These nurses are trained just like the astronauts. The nurses learn to function at the same altitude levels as the men. They learn to adjust to flight situations through training with the centrifuge and hyperbaric chamber. They learn to treat the bends and injuries at high elevations.

The nurses who qualify for this training must have a bachelor of science degree in nursing, have excellent health and be able to take the intensive continuous 52 weeks training. The Air Force trains two nurses a year. The space program may come to an end this year due to finances.

Capt. George, a native of Zanesville and a graduate of Bethesda Hospital, also told of some of her experiences during her year spent in Vietnam. While in Vietnam she was stationed at Cam Ranh Bay, a big hospital, the point of departure for the air evacuation out of the country.

Capt. George described the climate as hot and humid with all the related problems. During some time off they enjoyed the beaches of the South China Sea for deep sea fishing and scuba diving. This area has some of the most beautiful beaches in the world.

The facilities for working were generally very fine especially in the big hospitals, with the best equipment.

Capt. George was an O. R. Nurse during this time. There is much neuro-surgery, reconstruction surgery and orthopedics.

Much nursing time is spent with treating tropical diseases.

The corpsmen are the finest available and must be qualified to take over a ward in the absence of the nurses. The staff worked regular shifts with two nurses on call at all times and everyone generally available. When they were not taking care of combat casualties there was much general surgery like T and A and appendectomy. During the Tet offensive they never left the hospital during this combat time. Situations that arise to be met are unbelievable when working under constant disaster conditions. The intensive care unit is very complete with 24 beds and adequate staff.

Med-Cap teams from the bases go to the villages and do immunizations and general public health work, always with the permission of the witch doctor.

Capt. George stated that this year in Viet Nam was the most rewarding nursing opportunity she has had.

A short business meeting followed the program. The student nurse chairman reported that six girls have applied for our scholarship.

It was announced that the Head Start program needs a nurse and the YMCA needs nurses for the day camp program. Mrs. Dale Minor was welcomed back to Circleville.

It was announced the next blood bank will be May 4.

Members of the nominating committee, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. Charles Walters and Mrs. Jerrell Anderson will present the slate of officers at the May Meeting.

Mrs. Fred Adreus was hostess and Mrs. Virgil Anderson assisted.

Flower Show Scheduled In Columbus

Annual Nor-West Flower Show is scheduled for May 1 and 2 at Upper Arlington High School at Mt. Holyoke and Ridgeview Roads. On Saturday, May 1, the show will be open from 3 to 8 p.m. and on Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

Participating will be 21 garden clubs of the northwest area of Columbus. It will be a standard flower show with judging according to National Council of State Garden Clubs. Classes will be artistic, horticulture and junior. Special exhibits will include lighted and artistic designs and custom designed table settings.

know first hand that Maynard Marshall, Paul McClish, Bob Perry, Cecil Galloway and Robert Reed will also serve. Will try to keep an informed flow so all residents of our school district can keep in touch with a committee member or members.

Ecology Minded?

Are you mindful of the ecology movement that is upmost in the news these days? Well, as I've said before, our village is always right in there and ecology is no exception. Next Saturday, May 1, our own particular Earth Day will swing into action on the Williamsport school grounds. General Chairman is Mrs. Mike (Carol) Tarbill who can be reached at 986-2591 if you have any questions or more importantly, do you have a truck to volunteer to help with hauling to a landfill those items that can't be burned? Flyers with all the particulars will be sent home, too. This is for all age groups who want to join in the movement so if interested give Carol a buzz.

The entire cast and all the committees have worked so hard and given many hours of their time and so has the director, Miss Rachel Ford who also hand - painted the large sign that sets in the school yard close to Route 56.

The Seniors to Washington D. C. will serve a roast beef dinner at the school on Sunday, May 16. Speaking of church, we have a notice from Mrs. Viola Myers that the Williamsport Community Church will hold a week-end revival on April 29 through May 2. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 p.m. with Evangelist Simon C. Johnson of Bremen, in the pulpit. Special singing will be provided by the Johnson family and a song fest is scheduled for Sunday at 2 p.m. (May 2). Howard Rollins is pastor of the church and Fred Dowdy, Jr. is first elder. The church is located at what is known village-wise as the Y. It is the former Pilgrim Holiness Church.

Letters of intent to form a Citizens Advisory Committee were received several days ago by a number of Westfall school residents from the Board of Education. Those to whom letters were sent are: Mrs. Jerry Hildenbrand, Richard Christensen, Kerwin Durlinger, Clare Clark, Pat Neal, Darrell Caudill, Mrs. Sue Myers, Eileen Easterday, Eugene Hinton, Mrs. Robert Perry, Bruce Stevenson, Jr., Mrs. James Hastings, Maxine Brigner, Mrs. William Fraas, Dale Smith, Raymond Reiterman, Mrs. Sue Dick, Harold Marshall, Charles Rivers, Bob See, Bill Finch, Ed. Linville, Mrs. Kendall Bryan, Wendell Hott, Mrs. Bill Horchn Byron Carter, Mrs. Charles Galloway.

Due to other obligations some of these folks will be unable to serve so revisions have been made but an up-to-date list is not immediately available. I do

Don't forget the spaghetti supper being served from 5 until 8 p.m. on May 1 at the Westfall high school and sponsored by those hard working Boosters. If ever a dollar is well spent it certainly is when it goes to the Booster treasury, because they do so many things for the students that otherwise could not be afforded. When they "put on" a supper it is always one of the best with all the good cooks (this even includes some of the male members). Don't miss this one!

Joining the "mums club" are Patti, Pam and Sherry Garrison, Ted and Ann Hamric, and Jane Ellen Whitten. Master Eddie Linville has his own select club — a broken arm. He had the misfortune to tumble from a pick-up truck but he was fortunate in that it was stationary at the time.

Combat Nurse Explains Space Nursing Program

"The Role of the American Nurse in Combat areas is to provide professional skills and moral support for the fighting man on foreign soil." This was one of the points brought out by the speaker Capt. Shirley George, Nursing Co-ordinator of the U.S.A.F. Nursing Corps, as she spoke to the Pickaway County Registered Professional Nurses Assn. for the April meeting.

One of the topics covered briefly by Capt. George was some of the background and history of the Aerospace Nurse Program. The first air evacuation was tried during World War I without much success and then during World War II it proved successful. Air evacuation during the Korean conflict introduced the flight nurse to the scene and was successful and now is used in Vietnam.

The flight nurses today fly in Command of their so-called ward. It has been said of the flight nurse "their ward is the world." This introduced the nurse to the Aerospace program, training with the astronauts for the event of a space station. These nurses are trained just like the astronauts. The nurses learn to function at the same altitude levels as the men. They learn to adjust to flight situations through training with the centrifuge and hyperbaric chamber. They learn to treat the bends and injuries at high elevations.

The nurses who qualify for this training must have a bachelor of science degree in nursing, have excellent health and be able to take the intensive continuous 32 weeks training. The Air Force trains two nurses a year. The space program may come to an end this year due to finances.

Capt. George, a native of Zanesville and a graduate of Bethesda Hospital, also told of some of her experiences during her year spent in Vietnam. While in Vietnam she was stationed at Cam Ranh Bay, a big hospital, the point of departure for the air evacuation of the country.

Capt. George described the climate as hot and humid with all the related problems. During some time off they enjoyed the beaches of the South China Sea for deep sea fishing and scuba diving. This area has some of the most beautiful beaches in the world.

The facilities for working were generally very fine especially in the big hospitals, with the best equipment.

Capt. George was an O. R. Nurse during this time. There is much neuro-surgery, reconstruction surgery and orthopedics.

Much nursing time is spent with treating tropical diseases.

The corpsmen are the finest available and must be qualified to take over a ward in the absence of the nurses. The staff worked regular shifts with two nurses on call at all times and everyone generally available. When they were not taking care of combat casualties there was much general surgery like T and A and appendectomy. During the Tet offensive they never left the hospital during this combat time. Situations that arise to be met are unbelievable when working under constant disaster conditions. The intensive care unit is very complete with 24 beds and adequate staff.

Med-Cap teams from the bases go to the villages and do immunizations and general public health work, always with the permission of the witch doctor.

Capt. George stated that this year in Viet Nam was the most rewarding nursing opportunity she has had.

A short business meeting followed the program. The student nurse chairman reported that six girls have applied for her scholarship.

It was announced that the Head Start program needs a nurse and the YMCA needs nurses for the day camp program. Mrs. Dale Minor was welcomed back to Circleville.

It was announced the next blood bank will be May 4.

Members of the nominating committee, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. Charles Walters and Mrs. Jerrell Anderson will present the slate of officers at the May Meeting.

Mrs. Fred Adreus was hostess and Mrs. Virgil Anderson assisted.

Flower Show Scheduled In Columbus

Annual Nor-West Flower Show is scheduled for May 1 and 2 at Upper Arlington High School at Mt. Holyoke and Ridgeview Roads. On Saturday, May 1, the show will be open from 3 to 8 p.m. and on Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

Participating will be 21 garden clubs of the northwest area of Columbus. It will be a standard flower show with judging according to National Council of State Garden Clubs. Classes will be artistic, horticulture and junior. Special exhibits will include lighted and artistic designs and custom designed table settings.

Personals

Guests for the past week of Mrs. Ethel Brintlinger, 142 E. Franklin St., were her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brintlinger and children of Nagaunee, Mich. During the visit Mrs. Brintlinger's birthday was celebrated.

MANY HANDS — Girl Scout Troop 1176 descended en masse on the Red Cross building armed with a variety of cleaning products and all hands fell to and cleaned the windows. Ladders were in order for the high windows and in other cases just hanging on the frames sufficed. Participating in the project in conjunction with Earth Week were Sara Seum, Toni Hill, Florence Williams, Vickie Phifer, Patty Sowers, Kathy VanGundy and the leader, Miss Wanda Phifer.

OU Probe Centers On Realtors

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Plain Dealer said today about a dozen Athens real estate brokers lodged formal complaints with Ohio University because broker Carl K. Clifford received such extensive business in the administration of former OU President Vernon R. Alden.

The university has recently come under newspaper investigations for other exclusive and near-exclusive business arrangements over a period of years, including Alden's tenure as president.

"There was absolutely no way to get any business with the university then (during Alden's tenure)," The Plain Dealer quoted E. M. Conant, a realtor in Athens for 24 years, as saying. "I was told that the university would not be interested in buying or selling any land unless it went through Carl Clifford."

Conant told the newspaper that Clifford's hold on university real estate business was apparent for about four years when the university was buying land for a new airport and the city was buying urban renewal land to resell the university.

Martin L. Hecht, university vice president for development at the time Clifford dealt most extensively with the fund, told the Plain Dealer he used Clifford because "he was a good, aggressive real estate broker who I knew would get the job done."

He said other local brokers wanted OU to channel its real estate business through the Athens Board of Realtors, which would then parcel it out. He said he rejected that idea because it would give too many persons knowledge of development plans and could force a rise in prices.

This past week-end his parents, Charles and Lorna Pitt and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kneec Sr. drove down to be with Mike and his wife, the former Theresa Tilley. To make it a real family affair they were the house guests of a Pitt daughter and her husband, Dianna and John Reisinger who live at West Point, Ky. But are associated with the Fort Knox base too. Also based there is a nephew of the two families and so they brought him up to date on family matters. Ricky Gilbert is a son on Ellis and Elsie Kneec Gilbert of Waverly.

Don't forget the spaghetti supper being served from 5 until 8 p.m. on May 1 at the Westfall high school and sponsored by those hard working Boosters. If ever a dollar is well spent it certainly is when it goes to the Booster treasury, because they do so many things for the students that otherwise could not be afforded. When they "put on" a supper it is always one of the best with all the good cooks (this even includes some of the male members). Don't miss this one!

Another goodie on May 1 is a sale to be held at the Williamsport Pavilion starting a 10:00 a.m. and involved will be the Westfall Wranglers 4-H Club. They are working toward the goal of money for a horse arena. This will be a rummage sale and a bake sale, too. Any donations — furniture, housewares, clothing, money, tools, or what have you will be appreciated. Call either of the advisers, Mrs. Bill Fraas, Cliff Bowser, or Alfred Johnson if arrangements to pick up articles are needed. Help the "kids" to help themselves.

The TOPS (take off pounds sensibly) group is meeting regularly on each Monday evening at 7 p.m. and each week finds new members joining. At the last meeting, June Boyer won Queen of the week honors (lost the most weight) and the week before that, lo! and behold but our Queen was Dolly Thompson and chances are she will never forgive me for not printing it that same week for no matter what excuse I give she is determined it is envy on my part and could be a grain of honesty in that. You win a few you lose a few! The meetings will be held at Williamsport school beginning this Monday, April 26 with the same weigh-in time, 7 p.m. We invite and encourage anyone interested to come. Recent new members are June Boyer, Jessie Williams, Marabel Drummond, Laura Williams and Ruth Shannon.

I leave you this Thought for the Week: Oh Great Spirit grant that I may never find fault with my neighbor until I have walked the trail of life in his moccasins. (Cherokee Prayer)

Circleville Rips HT Rangers, 13-5

Circleville plated nine runs in the fifth inning as they ripped Hamilton Township, 13-5, in a contest Friday on the Rangers' home grounds.

Tom Bowers and Doyle Kiser led the Tiger attack with a double and single apiece. Bowers had four runs batted in and Kiser was responsible for sending two Tigers across the plate.

Greg Hoskins made his first mound appearance for the Red and Black and hurled the complete game. He gave up five hits, fanned four and issued nine bases on balls.

Lafferty went all the way for Hamilton Township, giving up nine safeties, whiffed nine and walked three.

HAROLD Smith and Chris Long each added a double to the Circleville attack and Mike Webb, Jeff Harr and Hoskins each had a single.

Frost's triple was the big blow for the lads from Hamilton Township.

After three scoreless innings the Tigers picked up a run in the fourth on Webb's single and Smith's long double.

The Rangers knotted the count with a single tally in the bottom of the fourth but the Tigers broke the game wide open in the top of the fifth with nine markers.

Four Tiger hits, two walks and four Hamilton errors in the fifth was the undoing of the Rangers.

The Rangers came up with two more runs in the fifth and added two more in the seventh to complete their scoring.

The Tigers put the icing on the cake in the top of the sixth when three hits, a walk and a Hamilton error accounted for three more tallies.

Toledo Mud Hens Stop Winnipeg, 11-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

International League fans in Toledo couldn't complain after their first look of the season at their hometown club.

The Mud Hens walloped the Winnipeg Wips 11-5 with the help of two home runs in one inning.

Elsewhere, Syracuse also had a successful home opener by taking the Tidewater Tides 12-9 in 10 innings. However, there wasn't much joy in Louisville as the Colonels dropped from first place as they took a 16-0 beating from the Charleston Charles. Richmond and Rochester had the day off.

Homers played an important part in the Toledo game. Tom Grayson and George Kalafatis clubbed round trippers in the sixth inning as the Mud Hens scored five runs to take the lead for good against Winnipeg.

Detroit Tiger pitcher Joe Niekro lost a no-hitter in the ninth inning against the New York Yankees last season.

Viking Rally Falls Short In Loss To LE

A seventh inning rally by Teays Valley fell short at Logan Elm Friday in a baseball game won by the Braves, 6-5.

Trailing 6-1 going into the seventh, the Vikings scored four runs before the final out. Joe Merritt started the rally with a single. Then Jim Pabst was walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball.

Dave Chaffin singled, driving in Merritt, Lloyd McManes singled in Pabst and Sam Wilson singled in Chaffin. McManes scored on a fielder's choice before the side was retired.

Until the fourth inning, LE pitcher Gary Wertman hurled hitless ball. In the fourth with one out Merritt slammed a triple for the first Viking hit and scored when the throw from the outfield was wild at third base.

LOGAN Elm jumped on starter Ron Spurlock in the first inning for two runs. With two out, Gary Francis reached first on an error and then Wertie Teets smashed a ground rule double through the centerfield fence.

Chuck Sims' triple scored both Francis and Teets. In the third, Steve Curtis led off with a single. Francis singled and Teets reached first on an infield single that loaded the bases.

Sims was walked forcing in one run, Rick Blankenship reached first on an error, scoring another, and a squeeze bunt by Steve Fischer accounted for the third run.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Braves scored what proved to be the winning run when Wertman led off with a double, moved to second and third on fielders choices and scored on a wild pitch.

The big hitter for the Vikings was Merritt with a single and a triple. The other three hits were singles by Chaffin, McManes and Wilson.

For Logan Elm Curtis had two singles in three trips to the plate, Teets belted a single and a double in three trips Sims slammed a triple that was good for three RBIs Mark Justus doubled and Wertman was two for three with a single and a double.

SPURLOCK pitched five full innings, fanning two and whiffing three. He was relieved by Sam Wilson in the sixth.

Gary Wertman went all the way for the Braves, walking three and fanning nine.

Logan Elm now has a 6-4 record on the season. Monday the Braves host Westfall.

Ladies' Golf Day Draws Big Field At Pickaway CC

Fifty ladies took part in Ladies' Day golf Thursday at Pickaway Country Club.

Helen Kittle, Ginny Hritz and Betty Estes had the best "poker hand" score in the Jet Flight.

The Swingers Flight drew for hidden partners and winning teams were Mescal Ferrell and Nita Slyh, Alice Camp and Ruth McFadden and Marge Thornton and Karmen Berlin.

Regular Ladies' Day golf will not be held next Thursday due to the annual Spring Luncheon and Fashion Show scheduled at the club. Anyone desiring to play golf may do so.

Things will be back in full swing May 6 with the Swingers' Flight teeing off at 10 a.m.

Indiana Stops Ohio All-Stars; Wins 101-92

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "It'll be different without Carr," Gordon Stauffer said after coaching Indiana to a 101-92 college all-star basketball victory over Ohio Friday night.

Indiana shoots for a sweep of the 1971 series tonight at Hinkle Fieldhouse in Indianapolis without Notre Dame All - America Austin Carr.

The 6-foot-3 Carr, who overcame a slow start to score 19 game high points Friday night in St. John Arena, has a previous commitment to play in all-star contest in Schenectady, N. Y. tonight.

"I told the kids before the game that this is for fun and the best way I know how to have fun is win," said Stauffer, who guides Indiana State during the season.

With Carr scoring four of the points, Indiana rolled up eight points in a row in the last 57 seconds to stop an Ohio rally that cut the margin to 93-92.

"We just hit some real clutchers when we had to. George Pillow came off the bench and gave us a big lift in the last quarter, too," said Stauffer.

Pillow 6-2 Indiana State star, stole the ball twice and scored eight of his 12 points in the last quarter. Carr, who managed only four points in the first half, poured in 10 in the final period.

Losing Coach Fred Taylor of Ohio State blamed Indiana's 49 to 39 per cent edge in floor shooting to "our really taking some bad shots. We were hurrying them too much, too."

Bubba Jones, who led Ashland to a 48-7 record in two seasons, paced the Ohioans with 16 points, 12 of them in the first quarter. Ohio jumped out front 26-19 after the opening period.

Colonels Win Over Squires

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — For whipping up a winning mixture, just add two blonde-haired kids from the University of Kentucky and a wily veteran who's been around.

Dan Issel and Mike Pratt joined the Kentucky Colonels as very rich rookies this season after playing their multifaceted basketball skills at Lexington for three years.

Cincy Powell of Portland had played with mediocre American Basketball Association team in Dallas since the ABA's inception, but was traded to Kentucky this season.

All three combined Friday night to spark the Colonels to a bitterly fought 115-107 victory over the Virginia Squires.

The Mud Hens walloped the Winnipeg Wips 11-5 with the help of two home runs in one inning.

Elsewhere, Syracuse also had a successful home opener by taking the Tidewater Tides 12-9 in 10 innings. However, there wasn't much joy in Louisville as the Colonels dropped from first place as they took a 16-0 beating from the Charleston Charles. Richmond and Rochester had the day off.

Homers played an important part in the Toledo game. Tom Grayson and George Kalafatis clubbed round trippers in the sixth inning as the Mud Hens scored five runs to take the lead for good against Winnipeg.

Detroit Tiger pitcher Joe Niekro lost a no-hitter in the ninth inning against the New York Yankees last season.

Viking Rally Falls Short In Loss To LE

A seventh inning rally by Teays Valley fell short at Logan Elm Friday in a baseball game won by the Braves, 6-5.

Trailing 6-1 going into the seventh, the Vikings scored four runs before the final out. Joe Merrit started the rally with a single. Then Jim Pabst was walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball.

Dave Chaffin singled, driving in Merrit, Lloyd McManes singled in Pabst and Sam Wilson singled in Chaffin. McManes scored on a fielder's choice before the side was retired.

Until the fourth inning, LE pitcher Gary Wertman hurled hitless ball. In the fourth with one out Merrit slammed a triple for the first Viking hit and scored when the throw from the outfield was wild at third base.

LOGAN Elm jumped on starter Ron Spurluck in the first inning for two runs. With two out, Gary Francis reached first on an error and then Wertie Teets smashed a ground rule double through the centerfield fence.

Chuck Sims' triple scored both Francis and Teets. In the third, Steve Curtis led off with a single Francis singled and Teets reached first on an infield single that loaded the bases.

Sims was walked forcing in one run, Rick Blankenship reached first on an error, scoring another, and a squeeze bunt by Steve Fischer accounted for the third run.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Braves scored what proved to be the winning run when Wertman led off with a double, moved to second and third on fielders choices and scored on a wild pitch.

The big hitter for the Vikings was Merrit with a single and a triple. The other three hits were singles by Chaffin, McManes and Wilson.

For Logan Elm Curtis had two singles in three trips to the plate, Teets belted a single and a double in three trips Sims slammed a triple that was good for three RBIs Mark Justus doubled and Wertman was two for three with a single and a double.

SPURLUCK pitched five full innings, fanning two and whiffing three. He was relieved by Sam Wilson in the sixth.

Gary Wertman went all the way for the Braves, walking three and fanning nine.

Logan Elm now has a 6-4 record on the season. Monday the Braves host Westfall.

Ladies' Golf Day Draws Big Field At Pickaway CC

Fifty ladies took part in Ladies' Day golf Thursday at Pickaway Country Club.

Helen Kittle, Ginny Hritz and Betty Estes had the best "poker hand" score in the Jet Flight.

The Swingers Flight drew for hidden partners and winning teams were Mescal Ferrell and Nita Slyh, Alice Camp and Ruth McFadden and Marge Thornton and Karmen Berlin.

Regular Ladies' Day golf will not be held next Thursday due to the annual Spring Luncheon and Fashion Show scheduled at the club. Anyone desiring to play golf may do so.

Things will be back in full swing May 6 with the Swingers' Flight teeing off at 10 a.m.

Squaw Valley Bid Of $25,000 Made

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's attempt to sell Squaw Valley a $9 million investment, has brought one bid—a $25,000 offer for the ski resort by John Fell Stevenson.

Nicklaus, Barber Remain Tied In T Of C Golf Tilt

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, tied for the lead for two consecutive days, is far from satisfied with his performance in the $165,000 Tournament of Champions.

"I've got to believe that I'm going to start playing better," Nicklaus said Friday after managing a one-under-par 71 for 140.

He was tied at that figure with veteran Miller Barber, who also had a 71. They had been tied at the end of 18 holes at 69.

One stroke back, at 141, was South African Gary Player, who also had a 71. Masters champ Charles Coody, who had the days best round, a 68, and Australian Bruce Devlin, 70, were tied at 142.

Gene Littler, Dave Stockton and defending champion Frank Beard were at 143 leaving only eight players under par on the tough La Costa Country Club course, a 7,114-yard layout featuring extremely deep rough.

Arnold Palmer got into it several times en route to a 74-including a four-over-par 40 on the front side. He was five strokes off the pace at 145.

The 40-year-old Barber and PGA champion Nicklaus not only had identical scores, they had identical comments after 36 holes:

"I'm very, very fortunate."

"It was more like trapshooting than playing golf," said Nicklaus. "You know, scatter-gun."

"Actually, I played a little better than I did the day before. But I still hit a lot of bad shots."

Barber said the same: "I'm just hitting my driver awful. Just awful. That drive on No. 1 may be the worst I ever hit."

"I blocked myself out. And I

Gus Niarhos, former major league catcher, will manage Quebec City in the Eastern League this season.

pushed it. And there was a slice on the end of it."

McLain Thrown Out; Denies Bad Language

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deny McLain, baseball's problem child who sat out most of the 1970 season because of suspensions, expects to be hearing soon from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The Washington Senators righthander denied using abusive language to umpire Art Frantz in questioning his calls. Frantz said otherwise and tossed him out of Friday night's game against Milwaukee.

Youth Baseball Announces Pony, Babe Ruth Rosters

Team rosters for the Babe Ruth and Pony Leagues have been announced by the Circleville Youth Baseball Program.

Forty-eight boys will participate in the four team Babe Ruth League while the five team Pony League will be made up of 72 players.

Managers are needed in both leagues and interested parties should contact Harry Waites, 474-6662.

Team rosters for the Babe Ruth League are:

DUPONT — Manager, Bill Camp; Gary Young, David Mehalick, Randy Thomas, Wade Camp, Virgil Imler, Mike Speakman, Gary Francis, David Truex, Jay Fath, William Taylor, James Brown, Rick Sampill.

KIWANIS — No manager; Rock Davis, Brent Jones, Jeff Spires, David Tarvin, John Smith, David Bevan, Steve DeBruin, Mike Diltz, Brian Herron, Phillip Roll, David Webb, Mike Herron.

Team rosters for the Pony League follow:

THIRD NATIONAL — No manager, Randy Saxour, Randy McPherson, Jim Francis, Paul Combs, Brett Christy, Brent McPherson, Tom England, Sam Lawhorn, Joe Handley, Larry

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "It'll be different without Carr." Gordon Stauffer said after coaching Indiana to a 101-92 college all-star basketball victory over Ohio Friday night.

Indiana shoots for a sweep of the 1971 series tonight at Hinkle Fieldhouse in Indianapolis without Notre Dame All-America Austin Carr.

The 6-foot-3 Carr, who overcame a slow start to score 19 game high points Friday night in St. John Arena, has a previous commitment to play in all-star contest in Schenectady, N. Y. tonight.

"I told the kids before the game that this is for fun and the best way I know how to have fun is win," said Stauffer, who guides Indiana State during the season.

With Carr scoring four of the points, Indiana rolled up eight points in a row in the last 57 seconds to stop an Ohio rally that cut the margin to 93-92.

"We just hit some real clutchers when we had to. George Pillow came off the bench and gave us a big lift in the last quarter, too," said Stauffer.

Pillow, 6-2 Indiana State star, stole the ball twice and scored eight of his 12 points in the last quarter. Carr, who managed only four points in the first half, poured in 10 in the final period.

Losing Coach Fred Taylor of Ohio State blamed Indiana's 49 to 39 per cent edge in floor shooting to "our really taking some bad shots. We were hurrying them too much, too."

Bubba Jones, who led Ashland to a 48-7 record in two seasons, paced the Ohioans with 16 points, 12 of them in the first quarter. Ohio jumped out front 26-19 after the opening period.

Indiana State, who won 12 of 13 games in the first quarter, Ohio jumped out front 26-19 after the opening period.

done when special electronics gear told the American pilots that SAM radar had locked onto their flight in preparation for firing from an area near the Quan Lang MIG airfield, 125 miles south of Hanoi and 185 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone.

Pilots said three SAM missiles exploded near their aircraft. One of the F4s received minor damage. The two fighter-bombers did not return the fire, but instead took evasive action. —Pilots of two Navy A7 attack planes from the Kitty Hawk, also on bombing missions against the Ho Chi Minh trail in the Mu Gia Pass area, observed two SAM missiles fired at their aircraft 76 miles northwest of the DMZ. Both SAMs exploded without damage to the aircraft. They also took evasive action instead of attempting to return the fire.

—The crew of a Navy F8 fighter from the carrier Hancock escorting an unarmed reconnaissance jet observed one SAM fired at the flight from a position about 82 miles northwest of the DMZ. The SAM exploded without causing any damage. Again, fire was not returned.

—Four Navy A1 attack planes from the Hancock escorting photo reconnaissance planes over the North attacked a SAM site 76 miles northwest of the DMZ with air-to-ground missiles and cannon fire after a SAM was fired from the enemy position. The Navy aircraft were not damaged and results of the U.S. strike were not known.

—The same flight of Navy A1s also attacked an anti-aircraft site about 110 miles northwest of the DMZ, with unknown results.

The U.S. Command said that since last Sunday American warplanes have carried out seven so-called protective reaction strikes over North Vietnam, raising the total announced this year to 30.

Scioto Society To Sponsor Essay Contest

All Pickaway County students from grades 10 through 12 are eligible to enter an essay contest being sponsored by the Scioto Society Inc.

A tri-county area made of Ross, Pike and Pickaway Counties, will be covered in the writing contest and an individual winner named from each county. The best essay in each of the three areas will be $25 in cash and four passes to the opening night presentation of the Scioto Society's outdoor drama "Tecumseh!"

Students should base their writings on the theme, "Is Knowledge of Our Cultural Heritage Relevant to My Generation?"

Scioto Society hopes to encourage interest in Ohio's background by sponsoring the contest, to give its young people a sense of identity and direct relationship with their past.

Essays are to be submitted by students to their respective English teachers by the close of school on May 14. Entries will be judged locally in each of the three counties and the winners announced.

Judge Gets Back At Newspapermen

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Miffed when local news media accused him of associating with alleged gamblers, youthful Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach waited for a chance to reply.

The chance came Friday when Hollenbach spoke to a crowd of about 500 at the "They're Off" derby festival luncheon in Louisville.

Hollenbach laughingly predicted if he and Louisville Mayor Frank W. Burke showed up at next Saturday's Kentucky Derby, the headlines would read: "Burke and Hollenbach seen consorting with 100,000 known gamblers."

Bank Officer Takes Training

DONALD SPURGEON

Donald Spurgeon, loan department member at the North Court Office of The Second National Bank of Circleville, successfully completed a special bank service training course in personal finance consultation.

Spurgeon completed the American Institute of Banking Personal Finance Course on April 23. During the 15-week training, he studied topics such as income, budgeting, savings, purchasing on credit, borrowing, investing, interest rates, insurance and inheritance.

Earl W. Palm, president of Second National Bank, said, "We are pleased that Don Spurgeon has completed this course and has accepted the additional responsibility of serving as a consultant in personal finance for our customers."

Mayor Quits In Kingston

Kingston Village mayor of 10 years, Paul Priest, resigned his position Thursday night, effective May 1. His 10 years in office is a record for a Ross County mayor.

Priest reportedly resigned his position at this time of the year to give Richard Falls, council president, an opportunity to consider running for the office in the November election. Falls will automatically move up to the post.

The Mayor is serving the last year of his fourth term in office. During his administration, the village park and fire station projects were started. He also is partly responsible for initiating the first annual Kingston Geranium Festival which debuts this year.

Priest noted that all business locations in the village are occupied, the village has received honorable mention as the cleanest village in Ohio and "stands a chance of being a model village," he said.

He added that he plans to remain active and work for the betterment of Kingston but, having spent 10 years as mayor, he felt it was "time to step down and let someone else take his turn at it. If everyone else would do this, I think people would have a better understanding of government."

TOM SPRING

Local Scout Receives Eagle Award

In a colorful Eagle Court of Honor April 19, at the Community United Methodist Church, Tom Spring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Spring of 579 Northridge Road, was awarded Scouting's highest achievement award.

The pledge of the Eagle was administered by Mr. Keith Rohrs, of the District Office of the Central Ohio Council. Mr. George Myers officiated as the voice of the Eagle, and the invocation was delivered by the Reverend Carl Zehner, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Tom has had an outstanding record since joining Troop 52 in September, 1968. He has served as Assistant Patrol Leader, Patrol Leader, Senior Patrol Leader and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster. Adventure highlights include a trip to Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, New Mexico, and a Junior Leader Training Camp at Camp Buckeye in 1970. Tom's Eagle service project was an effective advertising campaign for the Red Cross Life Saving Lessons. Tom also assisted in the program by serving as a Water Safety Aide.

Other awards were made to Steven Davis, Paul Heffelfinger, Dick Huskey received the Second Frank Withers and Jerry Yeatts, who received the Tenderfoot Badge. Brian Augustine, David DeFrank and Dick Huskey received the Second Class rank, and Tony Dray, Jim Heacock and Brent Smith advanced to First Class. Merit badges were received by Tony Dray, Ty Foster, Jim Heacock, David Phillips, Brent Smith, Tom Spring and Jack Withers. Tom Spring also received the Spanish Interpreters Segment.

Mr. Howard Judd, representing the Red Cross, presented certificates to the members of Post 52 that completed the Red Cross Standard First Aid Course. Those receiving certificates were Kevin Carter, Ken Yamarick, Jim Shank, David Shank and James Shank, Adviser.

WHS Boosters Plan Fence Installation

The Westfall Booster Club met Wednesday at the Westfall High School. Directors voted to complete the task of installing a fence in the area of the football field and baseball diamond, with plans to complete it by May 1.

Money was allocated to the girls track team to purchase food for concessions for the remaining track schedule. Proceeds to be used to defray expenses for awards program.

The Boosters will sponsor a spaghetti dinner May 1 at the Westfall High School, with serving from 5 to 8 p.m. Mrs. Pearl Trapp will serve as general chairman of this event. The group discussed the possibility of installing a tennis court, with basketball facilities. Ray Valone will serve as chairman of a committee to secure estimates by the next meeting, to be held on May 19.

New directors were elected for the 1971-72 club year. Those elected were: Cooke Metzger, Deer Creek Twp.; Roger Newlon, Jackson Twp.; Jerry Newton, Perry Twp.; Mrs. Daisy Roland, Muhlenberg Twp.; Russell Shannon, Darby Twp.; Carl Hildenbrand, Darby Twp.; and Mrs. Bertha Rittinger, Monroe Twp.

The new directors will be installed at the May meeting, at which time new officers will be elected.

Westfall School Citizens Group

Airs Problems

A group of citizens interested in the current problems in the Westfall School District, met Thursday at the Jackson Twp. School.

Reports were heard from the representatives to the Citizens Committee, who met recently with the Westfall School Board.

During the discussion which followed, the group accepted an invitation to meet with the Westfall School Board on May 4, 8 p.m., at the Jackson Township School.

The public is invited. Maynard Marshall, Robert Perry and Paul McClish were appointed to act as spokesmen for this meeting. Marshall will serve as moderator.

All persons with questions to be discussed at this meeting, are asked to submit them to one of the three spokesmen prior to the meeting.

Stanley Spring and Mrs. James Heacock served refreshments in the church basement following the ceremony.

Coupon Crusade Deadline Near

May 15 is deadline for Crocker coupons collected to be redeemed for a kidney machine.

Mrs. Helen Knece, Central Ohio Kidney Foundation representative, reminds local residents to deposit coupons at any of the county collection points or mail to her, Route 1, Kingston, before deadline date.

Through coupons collected in the Central Ohio area during the Crusade, the Kidney Foundation has purchased eight kidney (dialysis) machines. Two have been placed in Columbus hospitals, six in homes. Hospital machines require 600,000 coupons; home use machines, 300,000.

The Coupon Crusade will be continued by the Foundation after May 15 and coupons used for purchase of kidney-related treatment equipment through arrangements with General Mills, coupon redeemers.

The National Kidney Foundation is also currently circulating pamphlets concerning the Organ Donor Program. The Foundation, together with its Affiliates, seek to obtain donors of needed anatomical organs or parts for transplantation, therapy, medical research or education. A person wishing to become an organ donor need only sign a card which is attached to the pamphlet.

To learn more about organ donation, the Kidney Foundation can give additional information and provide donor cards.
